The future of research is interdisciplinary.

Interdisciplinary research can provide researchers with broader perspectives and a deeper, more connected understanding of their work in order to solve “wicked problems.”

This presentation will illustrate how a design approach can assist and enable better communication, and provide strategies for bridging the gap between disciplines to build an interdisciplinary research culture.

For more information, email MIRAinfo@mcmaster.ca. Registration is not required.

Follow us on social media:

@miramcmaster  mira.mcmaster.ca